Nottingham fiction publisher Weatherwane Press announce the forthcoming publication on 26/04/2012 of their latest novel:

The Lives of Ghosts

A breathtaking new novel by Nottingham writer

MEGAN TAYLOR

“There were ghosts at the loch house long before we arrived with ours.”

After her parents are killed in a car accident, twelve-year old Liberty Fuller is left in the care of her young pregnant stepmother, Marie.

Bewildered and grief stricken, they travel to a remote Scottish holiday home searching for a place to heal, but once isolated from the outside world, they find themselves surrendering to the dark tensions underlying their relationship.

Twenty-five years later, Liberty's own pregnancy forces her on a journey into the past as she attempts to confront the secrets of the loch house, and the ghosts still waiting there.

‘The Lives of Ghosts’ is Megan Taylor’s third novel. Her second, ‘The Dawning’ was published by Weatherwane in 2010.

Both novels demonstrate her ability to create characters we believe in and care about, and bring them vibrantly to life on the page.
